Greetings from Phoenix,

Attached is this week's news update. The focal point at this time is North Korea's launch of missiles which dropped short of the direction to Japan.

North Korea has developed missiles with greater range and more accuracy, and it is of immense concern to South Korea and Japan. Though most of the U.S. is out of reach to North Korean missiles at this time some parts could be reached.

The United States has pledged to defend its allies in the region so in response U.S. President Trump is sending B-52s and B-51s to South Korea.

Some have compared this missile incident to the Cuban 'missile crisis' of the time of John F. Kennedy U.S. presidency in the early 1960s when the United States was put head to head with the then Soviet Union. There was a great concern of nuclear war then, and many built bomb shelters in their backyards for fear of that possible scenario.

The rogue leader of North Korea, Kim Jong-un, has been president since 2011 and he has proven to be unstable and capricious in his actions, and anything is possible. We will have to wait for whatever outcome unfolds.

Have a wonderful Sabbath!

Kind regards,
Jim Tuck
